

AFRICAN GERBERA UPDATE
February 21, 2011

By Michael Erlewine (Michael@Erlewine.net)

Yesterday we left the young Gerbera bud in the middle of a snowstorm which came and dumped a lot of snow here. Most of the day was spent digging out. Schools were closed and many people on our staff were very late showing up for work.

I thought some few of you might like to know how this young flower was doing and since I could not go much of anywhere today, a photo was in order. Here she is and in high-res at that. She is really lovely.

